Utah Field House of Natural History State Park

SUBJECT: Dinolab Royalty on Diplodocus reproductions

As you will recall, Dinolab is contracting with the Division to refurbish and make new molds of the Diplodocus skeleton which had stood on the grounds of the Utah Field House for over 32 years. Dinolab, as part of this agreement, has the right to reproduce and sell up to 15 copies of this skeleton over a ten year period. Each skeleton they do sell means a $5000 royalty for the Utah Field House of Natural History State Park to be used for additional skeletons, models or other exhibits at the Utah Field House such as our Brachiosaur project.

While this has all been discussed informally with you and others as to the intended use of the royalty, it has not been formally put in written form. So as to avoid confusion in the future as to what this royalty is to be used for and to keep it from getting used or directed to some other area, it is felt that there should be documentation signed by you to this effect.

Also we need to know if the ^{USE} current donation account for the Utah Field House is the appropriate place for deposit of this royalty or if some other account will need to be set up.

If you agree to the above statements about the intended use of royalty payments made by Dinolab for reproduction of the Diplodocus skeleton, would you please sign in the space provided below.

Thank You.
